Index

to

BUSINESS COMMUNICATION QUARTERLY

Volume 67, Numbers 1-4, 2004

Author Index

Alexander, M.W. See Zhao, J.J.
Anderson, E.S. See Bacon, D.R.
Andrews, D. Best practices [Editorial]. 67(1), 5-6
Andrews, D. Global positioning [Editorial]. 67(2), 137-138
Andrews, D. Innovation [Editorial]. 67(3), 265-266
Andrews, D. Proficiency [Editorial]. 67(4), 385-386
Armstrong, M. [Review of the book The copyeditor's handbook]. 67(1), 111-113
Bacon, D.R. Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. 67(4), 443-454
Baker, W.H. Teaching presentation skills. 67(2), 216-218
Barker, R. ABC publications award winners for 2003. 67(1), 102-110
Bayless, M.L. Change the placement, the pace, and the preparation for the oral presentation. 67(2), 222-224
Blokzijl, W. The instructor as stagehand: Dutch student responses to PowerPoint. 67(1), 70-77
Boiarsky, C. The needs assessment: Using community consulting projects to teach business communications. 67(1), 58-69
Brock, S.J. See Roebuck, D.B.
Brumberger, E.R. The "corporate correspondence project": Fostering audience awareness and extended collaboration. 67(3), 349-358
Brumberger, E.R. [Review of the book The non-designer's Web book (2nd ed.)]. 67(3), 370-374
Conaway, R.N. Communication in Latin America: An analysis of Guatemalan business letters. 67(4), 465-474
Connor, M. Working through PowerPoint: A global prism for local reflections. 67(2), 228-231
Cooke, L. Two approaches to using client projects in the college classroom. 67(2), 139-152
Cyphert, D. The problem of PowerPoint: Visual aid or visual rhetoric? 67(1), 80-83

Business Communication Quarterly, Volume 68, Number 1, March 2005 109-119
© 2005 by the Association for Business Communication

DuFrene, D.D. Concept, content, construction, and contingencies: Getting the horse before the PowerPoint cart. 67(1), 84-87
Dúill, M.Ó. See Ulijn, J.M.
Dyrud, M.A. See Worley, R.B.
Evia, C. Technical communication learning on the U.S.-Mexico border: Factors affecting cross-cultural competence in globalized settings. 67(2), 233-237
Forman, J. Multiple roles in responding to strategic communications: Wearing trifocals. 67(3), 281-293
Gardner, C. [Review of the book Communication in a virtual organization (Managerial Communication Series, 3)]. 67(2), 245-247
Grant, T. Assessing and teaching communicative competence at a South African university. 67(4), 412-429
Griffin, F. Idioms and back-translation. 67(4), 455-464
Grosse, C.U. English business communication needs of Mexican executives in a distance-learning class. 67(1), 7-23
Gump, S.E. [Review of the book Professional communication in international settings]. 67(2), 250-254
Hart, J.L. [Review of the book Organizational communication in an age of globalization: Issues, reflections, practices]. 67(2), 248-249
Holmes P. Negotiating differences in learning and intercultural communication: Ethnic Chinese students in a New Zealand university. 67(3), 294-307
Howard, L. See Janson, A.
Jameson, D.A. Implication versus inference: Analyzing writer and reader representations in business texts. 67(4), 387-411
Janson, A. The odyssey of Ph.D. students becoming a community of practice. 67(2), 168-181
Jones, G.H. Message first: Using films to power the point. 67(1), 88-90
Korzilius, H. See Planken, B.
Lehman, C.M. See DuFrene, D.D.
Mahin, L. PowerPoint pedagogy. 67(2), 219-221.
McNair, J. See Gardner, C.
Miller, M.C. See Pittenger, K.K.S.
Moodie, D.R. See Roebuck, D.B.
Mott, J. See Pittenger, K.K.S.
Muir, C. Learning soft skills at work: An interview with Annalee Luhman. 67(1), 95-101
Naeff, R. See Blokzijl, W.
Nienhaus, B. Helping students improve citation performance. 67(3), 337-348
Page, A.N. [Review of the book Changing minds: The art and science of changing our own and other people's minds]. 67(4), 483-486
Pittenger, K.K.S. Using real-world standards to enhance students' presentation skills. 67(3), 327-336
Planken, B. Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. 67(3), 308-315
Rehling, L. Improving teamwork through awareness of conversational styles. 67(4), 475-482
Robertson, S.A. See Ulijn, J.M.
Roebuck, D.B. Using a simulation to explore the challenges of communicating in a virtual team. 67(3), 359-367
Saatci, E. Integrating financial analysis into presentations. 67(3), 316-326

Sapp, D.A. Global partnerships in business communication: An institutional collaboration between the United States and Cuba. 67(3), 267-280
Sauers, D. A comparison of traditional and technology-assisted instructional methods in the business communication classroom. 67(4), 430-442
Schoenberger-Orgad, M. See Janson, A.
Scott, J.C. American and British business-related spelling differences. 67(2), 153-167
Sincoff, M.Z. The dyadic interview project. 67(2), 206-213
Smart, K.L. Articulating skills in the job search: Proving by example. 67(2), 198-205
Starke-Meyerring, D. [Review of the book Management communication: A guide]. 67(4), 487-490
Starke-Meyerring, D. The rhetoric of the Internet in higher education policy: A cross-cultural study. 67(2), 238-244
Streberger, R.F. [Review of the book The expressive organization]. 67(3), 368-369
Thompson, M.P. See Baker, W.H.
Tietjen, P. See Gardner, C.
Ulijn, J.M. Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. 67(1), 41-57 van Hooft, A. See Planken, B.
Vik, G.N. Breaking bad habits: Teaching effective PowerPoint use to working graduate students. 67(2), 225-227
Walker, K. Activity systems and conflict resolution in an online professional communication course. 67(2), 182-197
Walker, R.C. See Sauers, D.
Wardrope, W.J. See Conaway, R.N.
Williams, M. Teaching PowerPoint in an MBA program. 67(1), 91-94
Williams, S. See Cooke, L.
Wong, I.F.H. See Connor, M.
Worley, R.B. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem. 67(1), 78-79
Worley, R.B. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem—Part II. 67(2), 214-215
Zachry, M. Dissertation research. 67(2), 232
Zhao, J.J. The impact of business communication education on students' short- and long-term performances. 67(1), 24-40

Title Index

ABC publications award winners for 2003. Barker, R. 67(1), 102-110
Activity systems and conflict resolution in an online professional communication course. Walker, K. 67(2), 182-197
American and British business-related spelling differences. Scott, J.C. 67(2), 153-167
Articulating skills in the job search: Proving by example. Smart, K.L. 67(2), 198-205
Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. Bacon, D.R., & Anderson, E.S. 67(4), 443-454
Assessing and teaching communicative competence at a South African university. Grant, T. 67(4), 412-429
Best practices [Editorial]. Andrews, D. 67(1), 5-6
Breaking bad habits: Teaching effective PowerPoint use to working graduate students. Vik, G.N. 67(2), 225-227
Change the placement, the pace, and the preparation for the oral presentation. Bayless, M.L. 67(2), 222-224

Communication in Latin America: An analysis of Guatemalan business letters. Conaway, R.N., & Wardrope, W.J. 67(4), 465-474
A comparison of traditional and technology-assisted instructional methods in the business communication classroom. Sauers, D., & Walker, R.C. 67(4), 430-442
Concept, content, construction, and contingencies: Getting the horse before the PowerPoint cart. DuFrene, D.D., & Lehman, C.M. 67(1), 84-87
The "corporate correspondence project": Fostering audience awareness and extended collaboration. Brumberger, E.R. 67(3), 349-358
Dissertation research. Zachry, M. 67(2), 232
The dyadic interview project. Sincoff, M.Z. 67(2), 206-213
English business communication needs of Mexican executives in a distance-learning class. Grosse, C.U. 67(1), 7-23
Global partnerships in business communication: An institutional collaboration between the United States and Cuba. Sapp, D.A. 67(3), 267-280
Global positioning [Editorial]. Andrews, D. 67(2), 137-138
Helping students improve citation performance. Nienhaus, B. 67(3), 337-348
Idioms and back-translation. Griffin, F. 67(4), 455-464
The impact of business communication education on students' short- and long-term performances. Zhao, J.J., & Alexander, M.W. 67(1), 24-40
Implication versus inference: Analyzing writer and reader representations in business texts. Jameson, D.A. 67(4), 387-411
Improving teamwork through awareness of conversational styles. Rehling, L. 67(4), 475-482
Innovation [Editorial]. Andrews, D. 67(3), 265-266
The instructor as stagehand: Dutch student responses to PowerPoint. Blokzijl, W., & Naeff, R. 67(1), 70-77
Integrating financial analysis into presentations. Saatci, E. 67(3), 316-326
Learning soft skills at work: An interview with Annalee Luhman. Muir, C. 67(1), 95-101
Message first: Using films to power the point. Jones, G.H. 67(1), 88-90
Multiple roles in responding to strategic communications: Wearing trifocals. Forman, J. 67(3), 281-293
The needs assessment: Using community consulting projects to teach business communications. Boiarsky, C. 67(1), 58-69
Negotiating differences in learning and intercultural communication: Ethnic Chinese students in a New Zealand university. Holmes P. 67(3), 294-307
The odyssey of Ph.D. students becoming a community of practice. Janson, A., Howard, L., & Schoenberger-Orgad, M. 67(2), 168-181
PowerPoint pedagogy. Mahin, L. 67(2), 219-221.
Presentations and the PowerPoint problem. Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. 67(1), 78-79
Presentations and the PowerPoint problem—Part II. Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. 67(2), 214-215
The problem of PowerPoint: Visual aid or visual rhetoric? Cyphert, D. 67(1), 80-83
Proficiency [Editorial]. Andrews, D. 67(4), 385-386
Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. Planken, B., van Hooft, A., & Korzilius, H. 67(3), 308-315
The rhetoric of the Internet in higher education policy: A cross-cultural study. Starke-Meyerring, D. 67(2), 238-244
Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. Ulijn, J.M., Dúill, M.Ó., & Robertson, S.A. 67(1), 41-57

Teaching PowerPoint in an MBA program. Williams, M. 67(1), 91-94
Teaching presentation skills. Baker, W.H., & Thompson, M.P. 67(2), 216-218
Technical communication learning on the U.S.-Mexico border: Factors affecting cross-cultural competence in globalized settings. Evia, C. 67(2), 233-237
Two approaches to using client projects in the college classroom. Cooke, L., & Williams, S. 67(2), 139-152
Using a simulation to explore the challenges of communicating in a virtual team. Roebuck, D.B., Brock, S.J., & Moodie, D.R. 67(3), 359-367
Using real-world standards to enhance students' presentation skills. Pittenger, K.K.S., Miller, M.C., & Mott, J. 67(3), 327-336
Working through PowerPoint: A global prism for local reflections. Connor, M., & Wong, I.F.H. 67(2), 228-231

Keyword Index

Assessment

Bacon, D.R., & Anderson, E.S. Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. 67(4), 443-454
Grant, T. Assessing and teaching communicative competence at a South African university. 67(4), 412-429

Book Reviews (alphabetized by last name of the book's author)

Andrews, D., & Andrews, W. Management communication: A guide. Reviewed by D. Starke-Meyerring, 67(4), 487-490
Cheney, G., Christensen, L.T., Zorn, Jr., T.E., & Ganesh, S. Organizational communication in an age of globalization: Issues, reflections, practices. Reviewed by J.L. Hart, 67(2), 248-249
Collins, S. Communication in a virtual organization (Managerial Communication Series, 3). Reviewed by C. Gardner, J. McNair, & P. Tietjen, 67(2), 245-247
Einsohn, A. The copyeditor's handbook. Reviewed by M. Armstrong, 67(1), 111-113
Gardner, H. Changing minds: The art and science of changing our own and other people's minds. Reviewed by A.N. Page, 67(4), 483-486
Schultz, M., Hatch, M.J., & Larsen, M.H. The expressive organization. Reviewed by R.F. Streberger, 67(3), 368-369
Williams, R., & Tollett, J. The non-designer's Web book (2nd ed.). Reviewed by E.R. Brumberger, 67(3), 370-374
Yuling, P., Scollon, S.W., & Scollon, R. Professional communication in international settings. Reviewed by S.E. Gump, 67(2), 250-254

Business Practices

Bacon, D.R., & Anderson, E.S. Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. 67(4), 443-454
Boiarsky, C. The needs assessment: Using community consulting projects to teach business communication. 67(1), 58-69
Brumberger, E.R. The "corporate correspondence project": Fostering audience awareness and extended collaboration. 67(3), 349-358
Conaway, R.N., & Wardrope, W.J. Communication in Latin America: An analysis of Guatemalan business letters. 67(4), 465-474

Cooke, L., & Williams, S. Two approaches to using client projects in the college classroom. 67(2), 139-152
Forman, J. Multiple roles in responding to strategic communications: Wearing trifocals. 67(3), 281-293
Jameson, D.A. Implication versus inference: Analyzing writer and reader representations in business texts. 67(4), 387-411
Muir, C. Learning soft skills at work: An interview with Annalee Luhman. 67(1), 95-101
Roebuck, D.B., Brock, S.J., & Moodie, D.R. Using a simulation to explore the challenges of communicating in a virtual team. 67(3), 359-367
Sincoff, M.Z. The dyadic interview project. 67(2), 206-213
Smart, K.L. Articulating skills in the job search: Proving by example. 67(2), 198-205
Ulijn, J.M., Dúill, M.Ó., & Robertson, S.A. Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. 67(1), 41-57

Collaboration

Brumberger, E.R. The "corporate correspondence project": Fostering audience awareness and extended collaboration. 67(3), 349-358
Janson, A., Howard, L., & Schoenberger-Orgad, M. The odyssey of Ph.D. students becoming a community of practice. 67(2), 168-181
Rehling, L. Improving teamwork through awareness of conversational styles. 67(4), 475-482
Roebuck, D.B., Brock, S.J., & Moodie, D.R. Using a simulation to explore the challenges of communicating in a virtual team. 67(3), 359-367
Sapp, D.A. Global partnerships in business communication: An institutional collaboration between the United States and Cuba. 67(3), 267-280
Ulijn, J.M., Dúill, M.Ó., & Robertson, S.A. Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. 67(1), 41-57

Conflict Resolution

Ulijn, J.M., Dúill, M.Ó., & Robertson, S.A. Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. 67(1), 41-57
Walker, K. Activity systems and conflict resolution in an online professional communication course. 67(2), 182-197

Consultancy and Client Projects

Boiarsky, C. The needs assessment: Using community consulting projects to teach business communication. 67(1), 58-69
Cooke, L., & Williams, S. Two approaches to using client projects in the college classroom. 67(2), 139-152

Course Content, Development, and Assignments

Bacon, D.R., & Anderson, E.S. Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. 67(4), 443-454
Boiarsky, C. The needs assessment: Using community consulting projects to teach business communication. 67(1), 58-69
Brumberger, E.R. The "corporate correspondence project": Fostering audience awareness and extended collaboration. 67(3), 349-358

Cooke, L., & Williams, S. Two approaches to using client projects in the college classroom. 67(2), 139-152
Forman, J. Multiple roles in responding to strategic communications: Wearing trifocals. 67(3), 281-293
Grant, T. Assessing and teaching communicative competence at a South African university. 67(4), 412-429
Nienhaus, B. Helping students improve citation performance. 67(3), 337-348
Pittenger, K.K.S., Miller, M.C., & Mott, J. Using real-world standards to enhance students' presentation skills. 67(3), 327-336
Planken, B., van Hooft, A., & Korzilius, H. Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. 67(3), 308-315
Rehling, L. Improving teamwork through awareness of conversational styles. 67(4), 475-482
Roebuck, D.B., Brock, S.J., & Moodie, D.R. Using a simulation to explore the challenges of communicating in a virtual team. 67(3), 359-367
Saatci, E. Integrating financial analysis into presentations. 67(3), 316-326
Sincoff, M.Z. The dyadic interview project. 67(2), 206-213
Smart, K.L. Articulating skills in the job search. 67(2), 198-205
Ulijn, J.M., Dúill, M.Ó., & Robertson, S.A. Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. 67(1), 41-57
Zhao, J.J., & Alexander, M.W. The impact of business communication education on students' short- and long-term performances. 67(1), 24-40

Electronic Technology

Bayless, M.L. Change the placement, the pace, and the preparation for the oral presentation. 67(2), 222-224
Blokzijl, W., & Naeff, R. The instructor as stagehand: Dutch student responses to PowerPoint. 67(1), 70-77
Connor, M., & Wong, I.F.H. Working through PowerPoint: A global prism for local reflections. 67(2), 228-231
Cyphert, D. The problem of PowerPoint: Visual aid or visual rhetoric? 67(1), 80-83
DuFrene, D.D., & Lehman, C.M. Concept, content, construction, and contingencies: Getting the horse before the PowerPoint cart. 67(1), 84-87
Grosse, C.U. English business communication needs of Mexican executives in a distance-learning class. 67(1), 7-23
Jones, G.H. Message first: Using films to power the point. 67(1), 88-90
Mahin, L. PowerPoint pedagogy. 67(2), 219-221
Roebuck, D.B., Brock, S.J., & Moodie, D.R. Using a simulation to explore the challenges of communicating in a virtual team. 67(3), 359-367
Sauers, D., & Walker, R.C. A comparison of traditional and technology-assisted instructional methods in the business communication classroom. 67(4), 430-442
Starke-Meyerring, D. The rhetoric of the Internet in higher education policy: A cross-cultural study. 67(2), 238-244
Vik, G.N. Breaking bad habits: Teaching effective PowerPoint use to working graduate students. 67(2), 225-227
Walker, K. Activity systems and conflict resolution in an online professional communication course. 67(2), 182-197
Williams, M. Teaching PowerPoint in an MBA program. 67(1), 91-94
Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem. 67(1), 78-79

Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem—Part II. 67(2), 214-215

Focus on Teaching (see Teaching)

Graduate Education and Programs

Forman, J. Multiple roles in responding to strategic communications: Wearing trifocals. 67(3), 281-293
Janson, A., Howard, L., & Schoenberger-Orgad, M. The odyssey of Ph.D. students becoming a community of practice. 67(2), 168-181
Vik, G.N. Breaking bad habits: Teaching effective PowerPoint use to working graduate students. 67(2), 225-227
Williams, M. Teaching PowerPoint in an MBA program. 67(1), 91-94

Innovative Assignments (see Course Content, Development, and Assignments)

Intercultural Environments and International Issues

Connor, M., & Wong, I.F.H. Working through PowerPoint: A global prism for local reflections. 67(2), 228-231
Evia, C. Technical communication learning on the U.S.-Mexico border: Factors affecting cross-cultural competence in globalized settings. 67(2), 233-237
Griffin, F. Idioms and back-translation. 67(4), 455-464
Grosse, C.U. English business communication needs of Mexican executives in a distance-learning class. 67(1), 7-23
Holmes, P. Negotiating differences in learning and intercultural communication: Ethnic Chinese students in a New Zealand university. 67(3), 294-307
Planken, B., van Hooft, A., & Korzilius, H. Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. 67(3), 308-315
Sapp, D.A. Global partnerships in business communication: An institutional collaboration between the United States and Cuba. 67(3), 267-280
Scott, J.C. American and British business-related spelling differences. 67(2), 153-167

Language

Conaway, R.N., & Wardrope, W.J. Communication in Latin America: An analysis of Guatemalan business letters. 67(4), 465-474
Griffin, F. Idioms and back-translation. 67(4), 455-464
Jameson, D.A. Implication versus inference: Analyzing writer and reader representations in business texts. 67(4), 387-411
Planken, B., van Hooft, A., & Korzilius, H. Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. 67(3), 308-315
Scott, J.C. American and British business-related spelling differences. 67(2), 153-167

Multilingual Environments

Evia, C. Technical communication learning on the U.S.-Mexico border: Factors affecting cross-cultural competence in globalized settings. 67(2), 233-237

Grosse, C.U. English business communication needs of Mexican executives in a distance-learning class. 67(1), 7-23
Holmes, P. Negotiating differences in learning and intercultural communication: Ethnic Chinese students in a New Zealand university. 67(3), 294-307
Griffin, F. Idioms and back-translation. 67(4), 455-464
Planken, B., van Hooft, A., & Korzilius, H. Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. 67(3), 308-315

Online Delivery

Sauers, D., & Walker, R.C. A comparison of traditional and technology assisted-instructional methods in the business communication classroom. 67(4), 430-442
Walker, K. Activity systems and conflict resolution in an online professional communication course. 67(2), 182-197

Presentation Skills

Baker, W.H., & Thompson, M.P. Teaching presentation skills. 67(2), 216-218
Bayless, M.L. Change the placement, the pace, and the preparation for the oral presentation. 67(2), 222-224
Blokzijl, W., & Naeff, R. The instructor as stagehand: Dutch student responses to PowerPoint. 67(1), 70-77
Connor, M., & Wong, I.F.H. Working through PowerPoint: A global prism for local reflections. 67(2), 228-231
Cyphert, D. The problem of PowerPoint: Visual aid or visual rhetoric? 67(1), 80-83
DuFrene, D.D., & Lehman, C.M. Concept, content, construction, and contingencies: Getting the horse before the PowerPoint cart. 67(1), 84-87
Jones, G.H. Message first: Using films to power the point. 67(1), 88-91
Mahin, L. PowerPoint pedagogy. 67(2), 219-221.
Pittenger, K.K.S., Miller, M.C., & Mott, J. Using real-world standards to enhance students' presentation skills. 67(3), 327-336
Saatci, E. Integrating financial analysis into presentations. 67(3), 316-326
Vik, G.N. Breaking bad habits: Teaching effective PowerPoint use to working graduate students. 67(2), 225-227
Williams, M. Teaching PowerPoint in an MBA program. 67(1), 91-94
Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem. 67(1), 78-79
Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem—Part II. 67(2), 214-215

Public Policy

Starke-Meyerring, D. The rhetoric of the Internet in higher education policy: A cross-cultural study. 67(2), 238-244

Teaching

Bacon, D.R., & Anderson, E.S. Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. 67(4), 443-454
Baker, W.H., & Thompson, M.P. Teaching presentation skills. 67(2), 216-218
Bayless, M.L. Change the placement, the pace, and the preparation for the oral presentation. 67(2), 222-224

Blokzijl, W., & Naeff, R. The instructor as stagehand: Dutch student responses to PowerPoint. 67(1), 70-77
Boiarsky, C. The needs assessment: Using community consulting projects to teach business communication. 67(1), 58-69
Connor, M., & Wong, I.F.H. Working through PowerPoint: A global prism for local reflections. 67(2), 228-231
Cooke, L., & Williams, S. Two approaches to using client projects in the college classroom. 67(2), 139-152
Cyphert, D. The problem of PowerPoint: Visual aid or visual rhetoric? 67(1), 80-83
DuFrene, D.D., & Lehman, C.M. Concept, content, construction, and contingencies: Getting the horse before the PowerPoint cart. 67(1), 84-87
Evia C. Technical communication learning on the U.S.-Mexico border: Factors affecting cross-cultural competence in globalized settings. 67(2), 233-237
Forman, J. Multiple roles in responding to strategic communications: Wearing trifocals. 67(3), 281-293
Grant, T. Assessing and teaching communicative competence at a South African university. 67(4), 412-429
Holmes, P. Negotiating differences in learning and intercultural communication: Ethnic Chinese students in a New Zealand university. 67(3), 294-307
Jones, G.H. Message first: Using films to power the point. 67(1), 88-90
Mahin, L. PowerPoint pedagogy. 67(2), 219-221
Nienhaus, B. Helping students improve citation performance. 67(3), 337-348
Planken, B., van Hooft, A., & Korzilius, H. Promoting intercultural communicative competence through foreign language courses. 67(3), 308-315
Sapp, D.A. Global partnerships in business communication: An institutional collaboration between the United States and Cuba. 67(3), 267-280
Sauers, D., & Walker, R.C. A comparison of traditional and technology-assisted instructional methods in the business communication classroom. 67(4), 430-442
Starke-Meyerring, D. The rhetoric of the Internet in higher education policy: A cross-cultural study. 67(2), 238-244
Ulijn, J.M., Dúill, M.Ó., & Robertson, S.A. Teaching business plan negotiation: Fostering entrepreneurship among business and engineering students. 67(1), 41-57
Vik, G.N. Breaking bad habits: Teaching effective PowerPoint use to working graduate students. 67(2), 225-227
Walker, K. Activity systems and conflict resolution in an online professional communication course. 67(2), 182-197
Williams, M. Teaching PowerPoint in an MBA program. 67(1), 91-94
Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem. 67(1), 78-79
Worley, R.B., & Dyrud, M.A. Presentations and the PowerPoint problem—Part II. 67(2), 214-215
Zhao, J.J., & Alexander, M.W. The impact of business communication education on students' short- and long-term performances. 67(1), 24-40

Teamwork and Teams (see Collaboration)

Writing Skills

Bacon, D.R., & Anderson, E.S. Assessing and enhancing the basic writing skills of marketing students. 67(4), 443-454

Brumberger, E.R. The "corporate correspondence project": Fostering audience awareness and extended collaboration. 67(3), 349-358
Conaway, R.N., & Wardrope, W.J. Communication in Latin America: An analysis of Guatemalan business letters. 67(4), 465-474
Griffin, F. Idioms and back-translation. 67(4), 455-464
Jameson, D.A. Implication versus inference. 67(4), 387-411
Nienhaus, B. Helping students improve citation performance. 67(3), 337-348